

Pebble: It's HUGE. It's the biggest egg I've ever seen! What kind of dinosaur lays silver eggs?

Tickles: I'm not sure. But we're going to look after it. Whatever is inside can hatch when it's ready.

Pebble: (shocked) Are you joking?

Tickles: No, I am not. Now stay here with the egg. I'm going off to collect some things to build it a nest.

Narrator: Tickles flew away. Pebble and River didn't know what to do. They had never looked after an egg before. River pushed the enormous egg to see if he could move it. Pebble tried to put her arms around it.

River: (trying his best to move the egg, but nothing happens) This thing weighs as much as our friend Trio.

Pebble: I can hardly get my arms around it.
